Cameron:

Thank you for reaching out. As you have identified no plausible basis for your clients to satisfy the standards under Rule 24 for intervention as of right or permissive intervention, and we are aware of no plausible basis given the issues in this case, Plaintiffs oppose both permissive intervention and intervention as of right by your clients. We would not, however, oppose your clients should they seek to file any timely amicus briefs with respect to substantive motions filed by the parties. Please let us know if you wish to discuss.

I hope you and your family are also safe and well.

Best,
Rachel

Judge Conley allowed my clients to intervene in three similar cases involving the primary election (the lead case was DNC v. Bostelmann). Could you please let me know your position on intervention as of right, as well as permissive intervention?
